Everyone enjoys this festival by singing, dancing, playing colors, hugging each other, and eating delicious and tasty food. It's a public holiday when all schools, colleges, universities, offices, banks, and other institutions are closed so that people can go to their homes and fully enjoy this special festival. Holi is the most expressive and effervescent festival.

Why is Holi celebrated in English?

There is a great history behind celebrating this festival. Prahlada and his aunt Holika. A long time ago, there was a devil king, 'Hiranyakashyap.' He was Prahlad's father and Holika's brother. He got the gift by Lord Brahma that he could not be killed by any man or animal, neither any Astra nor shastra, neither inside the home or outside, and neither in the day or night. He became very proud of such power and ordered everyone, including his son, to worship him instead of God because he is a real God.

Due to his fear, people left him to worship Prahlada because he was a true devotee of Lord Vishnu. After seeing this type of behavior of Prahlada, Hiranyakashyap made a plan with sister Holika to kill Prahlad. He orders his sister to take Prahlada in his lap and sit in the fire. Holika did so but unfortunately, she was burnt in the fire but Prahlada was not harmed and was not even touched by the fire as he was under the protection and blessings of God.

Since then, Hindu people started celebrating that event as the Holi festival after the name of Holika. In the night or evening a day before the colorful Holi, people burn piles of wood and co-dung in the surrounding areas in the myth of burning Holika. This festival is celebrated to commemorate the victory of goodness over bad or devil power.
